

"We are very happy with the services that GoodLife Care has provided in taking care of my mother. Whenever we have had questions or concerns, they've always provided the answers we needed to assist in making decisions about her care... GoodLife Care has medical professionals available beyond the caregiving level that my mother needs right now. It's possible that in the future she may require medical staffing assistance. Because GoodLife Care is full service, we can stay with them if things progress to that level and know that they will be able to provide people with those skills. We won't have to switch and start over with another company."

From an Employee

Intermittent Care

GoodLife Care - We can help:

Have you or a loved one become home-bound due to illness or accident? Do you or someone you care for have a chronic or age-related health condition or special medical needs that require extra care or assistance in order to continue living at home?

If that need arises, the decision as to who you ask to enter your home to provide health-related or caregiving service is a very important one. GoodLife Care will help by providing highly competent, compassionate in-home healthcare support. Our healthcare professionals are experienced in a broad range of home-care situations, including:

- Seniors with age-related infirmities;
- Surgical recovery patients of any age;
- New mothers and infants;
- Children, teenagers and adults with physical challenges; in-home respite needs
- Persons with chronic or debilitating illness;
- Patients requiring intermittent care;
- or other in-home short or long-term health care needs.

Client Care

Depending on the level of need assessed for each home care patient, GoodLife Care has a variety of skilled, professional healthcare employees available to provide service in a home setting, including:

- Registered Nurses
- Licensed Practical Nurses
- Certified Nursing Assistants

Our clients can be assured that they will always have access to a GoodLife Care employee 24 hours a day/7 days a week, through our On-Call system.

Thorough Assessments Mean Qualified Care

You can be confident that the skills and qualifications of each employee we assign have been carefully assessed before matching them to your home care needs:

All nurses are fully insured, and undergo a thorough interviewing, screening, and testing prior to employment. Nurses are regularly supervised and evaluated by our clinical management team to ensure GoodLife Care's high service standards are being upheld.

All of our employees have had an in-depth interview and completed our comprehensive intake process. This ensures that all government paperwork is on file, that each candidate has passed a drug screening and background check, and that we have completed reference checks and verified work history.
